Searching for more about Banksy - this new website appears over the weekend and only has this one photograph of his work that was recently removed from the London Underground by a Cleaner. The search engine brings up this weblink above

He added he was being "forced" to launch the online shop - called Gross Domestic Product - because a greetings cards company was attempting to legally trade using his name.

The artist is being advised that opening a shop which sold his merchandise would help him protect the trademark on his art.

In a statement, Banksy said: "A greetings cards company is contesting the trademark I hold to my art, and attempting to take custody of my name so they can sell their fake Banksy merchandise legally.

"I think they're banking on the idea I won't show up in court to defend myself."

Banksy said proceeds would go towards buying a new migrant rescue boat to replace one allegedly confiscated by Italian authorities.
